

Kwame Boateng

Kwame Boateng is a performance driven multilingual pharmaceutical executive, with broad experience across multiple functions including commercial finance, R&D finance, finance operations, strategic planning, business strategy, market analytics, and marketing. He has demonstrated success in building organizational alignment, building and optimizing organizational processes, and transforming strategic plans into workable solutions which can be bench marked against key operational targets. Kwame is a highly effective communicator and flexible decision maker focused on developing strong business partnering relationships with internal and external customers. He is a trusted advisor to leadership teams guiding all areas of finance

Kwame is currently Head of Finance, US at BioLineRx USA, Inc. in Waltham, MA. Preceding this position, he was VP of Finance for at GreenLight Biosciences, and prior to that he was Head of US Finance and Corporate Treasurer at Oncopeptides Inc., a Swedish oncology biotech. Prior to Oncopeptides, he served as the Head of Finance Operations at Alnylam Pharmaceuticals. Kwame also worked at Alexion as the U.S. controller and business partner of the U.S. Soliris and Strensiq franchises at Alexion and at Sunovion/DSPA as Head of Finance. He began his career at Roche as part of a leadership rotation program where he worked within commercial finance, corporate audit, supply chain, business strategy, and commercial areas in various positions of increasing responsibility.

Kwame attained an M.S. in Economics from the Albert-Ludwigs University of Freiburg in Germany. He also holds an M.S. in Finance from Boston University, and an MA in Strategic Communications and Leadership from Seton Hall University.

Kwame is a jazz fan, an avid reader, enjoys traveling and learning about different cultures and watching anime movies with his sons Thabo & Thulani. He is also on a mission with his sons to find the perfect burger.